Tuesday, February 3, 2011 According to a Tuesday report from Robert Maguire of the New York Times, the Federal Reserve will announce on Thursday the start of its third round of quantitative easing. "The second round of the program -- which will be expanded from $1.25 trillion to $1.75 trillion -- is the centerpiece of the Fed's plan for pumping more money into the economy and reducing unemployment. The program is under the control of Ben S. Bernanke, the Fed's chairman, who has criticized the weakness of the economy and the job market and said the Fed should act swiftly. Martin Feldstein, a former Fed official who is now president of the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative Washington think tank, said the Fed should step up now. "I would start sooner than later," he said. "I think it needs to be big." But others say the program should be expanded only gradually, until the economy is more durable. "The Fed should do it in the immediate future, but under the right conditions," said Scott Anderson, chief economist at Bank of the West in San Francisco. "It has to be in a larger context of a growing economy." See also: If you have any thoughts or suggestions, feel free to leave them in the comment section below.

Of course I could just import the module to the main script and use the functions I need, but this is not possible, the functions are used in other modules, but not exported. Is there a way to load an module just when its needed, without bringing the whole modules in memory? A: Option 1: If you have enough memory and only 3e33713323
